

From the early 1980s until the mid 1990s I wrote a regular column for Art New England magazine called FORUM. It was an attempt to create a conversation regarding the relationships between artists and the art world, in particular - art museums, government funders, critics and collectors. It sometimes garnered emotional responses from readers.

I have included a small selection of articles here.